A Noble Letter from Robert C.

Winthrop.

Governor Orr spoke at Philadelphia for the Union as it is as a representative from South Carolina, and Robert C. Winthrop, a noble patriot and a Union man from Massachusetts, sent a letter, which speaks for the Unionism of the old Bay State. It was written from Brooklyn, N. Y., but Mr. Winthrop has all his life been identified with Massachusetts, and we suppose he may therefore be considered as pose he may therefore be considered as the speak of unofficially representing Massachusetts.

And we are glad she has so able and so patriotic a representative. His letter constitutes a fitting response to the frapose he may therefore be considered as constitutes a fitting response to the fra-ternal appeal of South Carolina through Governor Orr. Men from Massachusetts and South Carolina have done much mis-chief and have contributed not a little to the sectional irritation that has cursed the land. It is time they should endeavor the land. It is time they should endeavor to undo the evils they have caused. It is time their representatives should march to make their representatives should march to the constitution.

Laye no disposition, however, to inarm in arm into a Union convention and for national purposes. They have done much to lacerate and convulse the country; they should do something now to heal and to quiet it.

I have no disposition, however, to indulge in any imputations either upon parties or upon individuals. I hope that a spirit of forbearance and moderation will prevail at Philadelphia, notwithstanding the insulting and proscriptive tone in which the Convention has been assailed by the opponents of the President

Mr. Winthrop has always been a strong Union man, mederate, reasonable, liberal, ready to yield somewhat of his own prejudices for the public good, and knowing that as our institutions were formed through the spirit of concession and compromise, so they ever must, if at all, be maintained. He gives his soul and heart to this National Union Convention, and its efforts to bring about "a more perand its efforts to bring about "a more perect Union" than now really exists will have the support of his eloquent voice, of his wise counsels, his cool judgment, his strong reason, and his clear pen.

Thus, one by one are the calm, good men of all patriotic parties lending their influence to give effect and success to a movement which the exegincies of the movement which the exegincies of the constitution and the choice in all their legitimate authority and extent. Nothing less than the whole Constitution and the choice in all their legitimate authority and extent. Nothing less than the whole Constitution and the choice in all their legitimate authority and extent. Nothing less than the whole Constitution and the choice in all their legitimate authority and extent. Thus, one by one are the calm, good imes have called into being for the restoration of our country to its ancient condition of harmony, prosperity, and prog-

May we not reasonably hope that the great mass of good men belonging to the Republican Party will review the situation and give in their adherence to the great work of reconciliation undertaken by the President and his constitutional advisers, and which, confessedly, has the warm father of the Republican Party, and many others who, they must admit, are patriotic, Union men? Is it not better to have the country fully restored to a condition of harmony, and to trust to time, to discussion, and to public opinion to correct whatever may need correcting either South or North than to prolong a state of things which so many sagacious and cer tainly excellent men look upon as full of peril to the best interests of the whole country? Why let a few pestilent Northern Secessionists and their allies in Kentucky and elsewhere keep the country in constant discord? Because a few mischievous persons seek to identify themselves with a great patriotic movement, should that movement itself be opposed and condemned, when the great majority have so long been cursing the Union and the Constitution as "an agreement with hell and a covenant with death"? Are not the fiercest of his opponents those who have said that they would scruple at nothing to accomplish their ends? those who declared that "over all constitutions and all laws, all organizations either of church or state"—including the Constitution and the Union—they would ride in order to overthrow an institution confessedly constitutional and lawful at the time? Admit that at the time we refer to the Secessionists of the South were acting in unison with these Northern Disunion traitors, and that the former very generally now support the President, do not all the reasonable and fair-minded Southern men now confess that they are done forever with separation, and do they not now declare both by words and deeds must be paid; that its payment concerns the honor of the South as well as of the North. This is the most wholesome talk we have had from a prominent representative man of the South since the impression was made in that section by the President's quarrel with Congress that he was for the reconstruction of the rebellion rather than of the national dest must be paid; at its payment concerns the honor of the South as well as of the North. The Kentucky Secessionists in the late campaign sought to exasperate and inflame the North, to rouse all the old sectional principle, or anything of true factors and principle, or anything of true factors and principle, or anything of true factors and principle, or anything of true factors. Mr. Patton, on behalf of the Pennsylvania Delegation, seconded the call and the cheers were enthusiastically given.

The address contains about 8,000 words, and will make not far from four solid columns in the New York morning papers. It demands the universal acknowledgment of the legitimate consequences of the war, the perpetual maintenance of the Union and the destruction of slavery.

It asserts next that the Government acquired no new rights or powers by the war; that it acted only on the defensive. Congress had passed a resolution that when the war closed all the powers and The resolution was adopted. Diet.—The dietetic part of medicine is on inconsiderable branch, and deserves a much greater share of regard than it commonly meets with. A great variety of diseases might be removed by the observance of a proper diet and regimen without the assistance of medicine, were it not for the impatience of the sufferers. On all occasions, it may come in as a "proper assistant to the cure," and we would particularly caution the afflicted that in taking Roback's Blood Pills and Blood Pullfiers they must not expect cures performed they must not expect cures performed without due observance of the diet. An African Monster.—A monster tur-tle was caught last week near Seguin, Me. The Portland (Me.) Press says: "It is judged that he weighs more than twelve bundred pounds. Some twelve or fifteen hundred pounds. Some twelve or fifteen years since a vessel was wrecked in that vicinity, with an African turtle on board that weighed three hundred pounds. There is no doubt that the captured one is the same fellow, as he has been seen occasionally ever since he was wrecked. He has improved his time by growing so that when in the water it took four men to manage him, with a cord tied to each flipper."

Amamosis and Loss of Memory.— Twenty-eight years of observation has convinced Dr. Litchel that few person can continue to consume (smoke) daily twenty grammes of tobacco without thei twenty grammes of toacco without their vision or memory becoming impaired. There are many smokers, he urges, who may long resist those effects, but the pernicious consequences, though slow in manifesting themselves, are, however, none the less estation.
